ALL THAT JAZZ

A Look at Foreign Aid

FROM THE ANCIENT LANDS OF CHINA, THROUGH THE rice paddies of the Southeast Asian peninsula and the teeming cities of India, into the oil-rich Arabian lands of the middle east, sweeping across the giant somnolent African continent and over the Atlantic Ocean to the feudal expanses of South America, there exists an area containing the homes of over half of the world's population, the target area of the population explosion, and a standard of living so low that most of the people barely manage to exist.

These are the nations known as the underdeveloped, or, as they are more politely termed, emerging or developing. These nations, the newly liberated colonies of European powers, the hotbeds of guerrilla warfare, and the despotic dictatorships, present one of the most formidable problems facing the nations of the modern world.

What are the conditions which make these countries so impoverished? According to Professor Jan Tinbergen of the Netherlands Economic Institute, two factors are primary: "1. A low level of technical and organizational skill residing in the human factor of production and 2. A small quantity of the complimentary factors of production, i.e. the total of land and capital."

UNDERDEVELOPED COUNTRIES PRESENT A PROBLEM, not only in that they are areas in which people are hungry and ill, but also in the realm of international relations. The instability and disorder present in many of these areas tend to become "points of polarization" in the Cold War between the East and the West. The competition between the Communist bloc and the Western world over these emerging countries is both political and economic. Each side attempts, by "economic aid," to secure implicit political alliances.

The Soviets appear to have an initial advantage over the United States due to several facts. The Communistic system has achieved in the Soviet Union, and apparently is achieving in mainland China, the rapid growth through industrialization which is desired by the developing countries. Handicapped by its association with colonial powers and by a past record of exploitation, the United States offers only the gradual method which has brought about industrialization in the West. The Communists offer a "resume of the revolutions that make up modernization," and actively work to implement this revolution in the poor nations.

The underdeveloped countries, then, are poor because of certain defects, inherent or otherwise, present in their economies. The developed nations are waging a neo-colonial war under the guise of extending help, all of which is intensifying the Cold War.

THE SOLUTION TO THIS PROBLEM IS NOT AN EASY one and it certainly will not be solved by the current session of Congress, or for that matter, by any Congress. The answer lies in sublimating the nationalistic desires of individual countries to the general welfare of the entire world.

The capital and investment from developed countries must continue to flow to the underdeveloped. Technological advice and assistance must continue to be given. Educational and health facilities must continue to be provided. But these will not solve the problem. They will only continue the present unworkable situation.

Only through international co-operation of aid programs and of the various forms of assistance will any real development take place. Aid must be given with no political strings attached. This is not to say that political reform is not necessary so that the results of the development go beyond the already rich ruling class, but that military and defense agreements must not be a part of foreign aid.

AMERICANS PARTICULARLY MUST LEARN TO THINK of the people in these nations as fellow human beings and not as possible votes against the admission of Red China to the UN. We must give aid as an act of love, not as an act of fear and intimidation.

They're Talking About—

Students who can park anywhere: they have two, three or four parking permits on their cars . . . New ceiling for the auditorium . . . parking space at the girls dorm . . . Peace Corps test, April 27 in St. Joseph . . . first question: "Are you addicted to postcard writing?"

PHONETICS—the only class in this college where a student can answer "uh" and have a 50-50 chance of being right.

PSYCHOLOGY—where you find out exactly what kind of a nut you are.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION—where those of us with comparatively uneducated physiques learn that ignorance is not bliss.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A LECTURE class and its DISCUSSION group is that in lecture the professor talks to the students and in the discussion section, he talks to himself.

That's College!

In spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of—love? It seems even good, old, "common" English grammar suffers from the romanticism of spring-time.

Recently an unidentified English professor wrote the following on the board: "There goes Mary, Wow!" In encouraging discussion concerning punctuation, he asked if there was any other possible way of clarifying these words through the use of punctuation marks.

Finally, he acknowledges a hand waving frantically in the back row. The answer came in this manner: "I'd make a dash after Mary!" Class dismissed . . .

Brumley walked one and struck out seven, while Croley walked four and fanned eight.

Bernie Ricono singled, advanced to third on an error and a fielder's choice and then stole home in the fourth inning of the opening tilt to put the Bearcats ahead. Harris scored the winning run in the sixth inning.

Howard Rolfe, Jim Sanders and Croley each cracked doubles, and Randy Wolcott and Anderson followed with singles for a 3-run outburst in the second inning of the nightcap to give the Cats the lead to stay.

Anderson was three for three in the second game. Rolfe and Croley each added two hits to the 9-hit MSC attack.

The wins evened the Bearcat record at 4-4 for the season. Bethany has a 2-5 mark.

MSC journeys to Warrensburg Saturday for a twin-bill.
